Felipe began karting in Brazil at the age of seven and won several national titles before making his open wheel racing debut in 2008 in the final round of the Formula BMW Americas season. For 2009 he moved to Europe and competed in the Formula BMW Championship, claiming the title in his first season with seven wins in 16 starts. In 2010 and 2011 he competed in the British Formula Three Championship, finishing in 5th position in his first year and claiming the title in 2011 after securing seven wins.

2012 saw Felipe move to the GP2 Championship with DAMS where he finished the championship as the second highest placed rookie and in tenth place overall. That year he also competed in the Daytona 24 Hour, finishing third overall with Michael Shanks Racing. For 2013 Felipe joined Carlin Motorsport, finishing in 4th place in the GP2 Championship.

2014 sees Felipe reach Formula One as the official Test and Reserve Driver for Williams. After making his debut behind the wheel of the Williams Mercedes FW36 during the Bahrain test, Felipe will take part in a further two testing and five FP1 sessions during the 2014 season and conduct simulator testing at the Williams factory in Grove, Oxfordshire.
